WEDDED, BUT A MISS

Black-Eved Mand McCrea Tells Her Sad Story.

HER LOVER WAS MARRIED.

But He Took Her to Kentucky and Made Her Walk Back Home.

THE ALLEGED BIGAMIST IN JAIL

Pretty Maud McCrea went to the Central police station last night and told her sad story to Police Inspector McAlcese. It appears that she was deceived by a plausible man, whose record, according to the Inspector, could not be much worse. She is the daughter of a molder, who lives at No. 217 East street, Allegheny. She is a very pretty young woman, with almost perfect form, regular features, large dark eves and dark hair. An elder sister is married to a man named Fred Goebel, and lives at No. 18 Franklin street. Fred is a salesman in Jackson's clothing house on Liberty ajenue, and is highly respected. John Goebel, a brother, went a few years ago to Philadelphia and there married woman named Lizzie. With her he visited his brother in this city, and there met his mister-in-law's pretty black-eyed sister, Maud. John was smitten, and not long after his return to Philadelphia, a few months ago, he returned alone to this city. He took every opportunity to meet Maud, and used to go over to Allegheny to see her. About the first of this month John Goebel told Maud that he must leave the city for the West to look for work. He told her that he loved her, and proposed that she go with him and be married. She asked about Lizzie, in Philadelphia, and he told the girl that he had obtained a divorce from Lizzie. A RUNAWAY MARRIAGE.

On Tuesday, May 6, John Goebel and Maud McCrea secretly left Pittsburg for Cincinnati. The next day they were mar-ried, at Covington, Ky., by the county judge. They then returned to Cincinnati, where they lived at a cheap lodging house, while John pretended to be seeking work.
The disappearance of Maud and John at the same time opened the eyes of Maud's parents and sisters, for there is a third sister, unmarried and also very pretty, living at home in Allegheny. It was at once guessed that the two had run away. The sisters wrote to Philadelphia, to Mrs. Lizzie Goebel, whose address they knew, and were horrified when they received word that she and John had not been divorced at all, but that she was still his legal wife. But no word could be heard from the runaways, and where they were in the East, South or West was beyond all speculation. The poor girl's parents were greatly worried, and the unmarried sister, whose hair verges closely on auburn, vowed vengeauce if she should ever again set her eyes on "that John Goebel."

The unraveling of the intrigue, as the critics of Greek tragedy call it, must be related as Maud gave it, from her red lips, to Inspector McAleese last night. And as she told it her big black eyes seemed almost

A HONEYMOON'S SAD ENDING.

John found no work in Cincinnati. All doors were closed to him, but Maud thinks he did not skin his knuckles with knocking on them. At last their money was all gone, and when John had in his pocket only one well-worn quarter, of the vintage of '75, he told her that they must shake from their told her that they must shake from their feet the mud of Cincinnati's streets and work their way, as best they could, toward the old home in Pittsburg. So they crowded and started to walk.

They tramped from Cincinnati to Colum-bus. It rained nearly every day, and sometimes between rains. It was a terrible jour-ney, but the end of it was more terrible. They took shelter in barns, in horse sheds by country churches, in deserted houses, and twice found rest in the beds of hospitable farmers. It was a slow tramp, a dreary and wet one, and many days one of hunger. But they reached Columbus, and there, from people who took pity on them because of Goebel's deleval tale and the black-eyed Maud's sweet but tired face, raised enough money to bring them to Pittsburg by rail, BACK TO THE OLD HOME.

They reached this city on last Friday evening. Goebel went for the night to his brother's house on Franklin street, and Mand sought refuge under the roof of her parents in Allegheny. Herappearance was piti ul enough, but the story she learned at me made all her weary journey seem like a pilgrimage through purgatory. She was not a wife at all, but a deceived young the story to Inspector McAleese. He had heard but a little of it when he sent Detectives Robinson and Shore to the house on Franklin street. John Goebel was arrested, taken before Alderman Gripp and held for court. He is in the county jail. The wronged girl said that she would push the case to the last. The Inspector has written to Philadelphia to secure the story of Mrs. Goebel, but has not yet received reply. The Inspector says that he has learned served in Philadelphia a term of one year for robbery, and that before his departure with Mand for Cincinnati, he robbed an Allegheny man of $45.

A BOOM FOR ALLEGHENY.

The Common Council Pass the California Avenue Ordinance.

Unfinished business came up before a special meeting of Allegheny Common Council last night. Following routine work, upon Mr. Stauffer's motion, the action taken in referring the ordinance for the grading of California avenue, from Island avenue to the city line, was reconsidered. At a previous meeting the ordinance had been passed, but, after City Solicitor Elphinstone's speech, the action was reconsidered and the ordinance referred back to the Street

The petitions stated that Pittsburg had eclipsed Allegheny in general progress on account of opening broad highways in its undeveloped portions, while Allerheny has never done anything to improve her main ontlets, and the opening of California ave-nue was a step in the right direction. President Hunter stated that owing to a

The Pittsburg railroads have entered heartily into the scheme, and will run excursion trains into the city to carry the excursion trains into the city to carry the crowds. A mansard roof, 400 feet long, 35 feet wide and 15 feet high, has been added to the building. The P., A. & M. Will Increase Its Capital, Reorganize and

SUSPENSION BRIDGE TO BE REBUILT

The directors of the Pittsburg, Allegheny and Manchester road met yesterday morning, and decided to reduce the fares on all the company's lines from 6 to 5 cents. The road met, and a large majority decided to reorganize the company, increase the capital stock and change the name. The only persons who have not yet signed are A. M. Byers and Fred Gwinner. These gentlemen were not at the meeting, but the others think they will be satisfied when everything is properly understood. About 20 stockholders were present, though C. L. Magee and George B. Hill were absent, but were represented the company could not be organized unless other stockholders feel sure they can go ahead without their consent. Out of 7,000 shares these two gentlemen control 461. Commodore Kountz, after some details had been explained to him which he did not understand, signed the paper, and his 1,500 shares went to swell the vote of the majority.

REORGANIZING THE ROAD.

A committee on organization, consisting of Fred Magee, Commodore Kountz and John H. Dalzell, was appointed. This committee will meet at C. L. Magee's office to-day to decide on a plan for the election of a Board of Directors. As soon as this is done the new company will be organized, or rather the old Pittsburg, Allegheny and Manchester Company will be merged into the Pittsburg and Allegheny Traction Road creased to $3,000,000. Mr. Uttiles Baird, one of the stockholders, stated that in a few days all the details of reorganization would be completed, and the contracts for an elec-tric road would be let. This means that by next winter there will be another rapid transit line to Allegheny. Mr. Baird thought that Messrs. Byers and Gwinner would be found in line when the proper time came. He thought Mr. Byers was too good a business man to hinder the progress of the city, or not to go into a company that will increase his dividends.

THEY WILL GO AHEAD.

tlemen could hamper the company. The ma-jority had decided to go ahead, and he doesn't think it possible that a small minor-ity can block the work. He also stated that there was no opposition to Messrs. Byers and Gwinner. Some of the other stockholders were mad because these men were not present, and one claimed that they were trying to squeeze the company to buy them out at a good figure. Every stockholder who holds a share in the old company will have eight in the new one.

In this connection it may be said that the stockholders of the Sixth street bridge will meet to-morrow to vote on an increase of the capital stock of the company for the purpose of erecting a new bridge for the accommoda-tion of the Pittsburg and Allegheny traction road. Superintendent Chapman stated that the present bridge was inadequate, and it

The new electric cars will run down Atwood street to Bates and around the bluff back of Linden Grove. When the line was pro jected, it was a common supposition that the company would issue exchange or trans fer tickets to the people using the cable cars to come to town. called soon.

As the time approaches when the Elec rie road will be in operation, the citizens are again raising the question of what shall be done with the wagon traffic below Seventeenth street on Carson. It is said that the heavily loaded iron wagons will not be able to puil back onto the track when they have once pulled off close to the curb, and the increased number of cars with fast time will not give them an apportunity to cross from one track to another. Of necessity this traffic will revert to Bingham and Sarah streets. One proposition is to open Bing ham street to First street or to Smithfield.

Account of a Shortage. Rubber goods are a springy commodity these days, a further advance in prices of 15 to 25 per cent on belting, packing hose and mechanical rubber goods having been agreed upon in New York by representatives of the principal manufacturers in the United States. Inquiry of a prominent dealer in this city elicits the information that the advance is caused by the world's production being inadequate to the demand. He states that prices will be kept down as long as possible, but that it must come and will range from 10 to 100 per cent, and on pure rubber goods

NORTHSIDE POLITICIANS STILL BUSY. Work Continues Unremittingly in the Congressional and Senatorial Canvasse Though the sun heated up the air several degrees yesterday in recognition of the coming summer, the added caloric had no effect in abating the energies of the Northside politicians. Both in the Congressional and Senatorial canvass there was any quantity of work done. There was also a large Twenty-first and Carson streets of those who are interested in the movement, but on account of it not being well advertised but few were present. Another meeting will be viewed that opinions went. viewed that opinions went.

The drift of opinion since Colonel Bayne's return has been toward the presumption that he has got his forces in shape, and will pull out a winner. The strongest sort of assertions to this effect were made freely on Tuesday and yesterday, both by the Colonel and by his supporters. But on the other hand Shiras and his supporters were fully as con-fident in their expressions. Their claims fident in their expressions. Their claims yesterday were as strong as at any time belore; and they appeared to be working as hard, if not harder, than ever. Both the Bayne and Shiras backers were active through the day. Colonel Bayne was reported as having said in an interview that he would be "an easy winner," while Mr. Shiras was not less frank in declaring his belief in his own success. belief in his own success. A choice variety of literature has been scattered over the distriet-much of it of a personal sort. The Senatorial contest between Neeb and Rutan is developing no less activity than the Congressional. John Neeb is putting in the Congressional. John Neeb is putting in his most powerful efforts. Reports come from his backers that one bet of $500, made by a Rutan chief, had been taken by Neeb's supporters, and that the latter had $2,000 besides which they were willing to stake, but did not find takers. Notwithstanding these signs, the Rutan people still keep up their preparations with unabated vigor. From the earnestness shown by all the canlidates so far in standing by their guns, it is not supposed that any concessions will be made until the actual vote at the primaries
